Other editions. Astronomical Formulae For Calculators by Jean Meeus ASTRONOMICAL FORMULAE FOR CALCULATORS by Jean Meeus. This book is a classic borne out of the calculator revolution of the '70s. Then people suddenly had a powerful way to calculate astronomical movements, but there were no formulas with which to do it! This book fills that need completely. A sampling of the chapters includes: ephemeris time and universal time, date of Easter, Julian date and calendar date, precession, nutation, solar coordinates, position of the Moon, position of Jupiter ... Astronomical Distance Calculator provides the distance from the Earth to numerous astronomical bodies (e.g. Sun, Moon, planets, stars, Milky Way's Center and Edge, Andromeda Galaxy) Astronomy Calculator If the division is done first, then the first calculation is $\left(\frac{s}{1461001} = 400/1461001 \right)$ which yields 0, because the remainder of the division is discarded. The second calculation is then $\left(0 * 4000 = 0 \right)$ so the end result is 0. The end result depends on the order in which the calculations are done. Many astronomical formulas involve angles.
